[From the Rochester Union, Sept. 3.]

Yesterday was truly a proud day for Rochester's little daughter, Charlotte. She essayed to bring out a champion of the tight rope and put herself on a par with the city and ahead of Niagara Falls, and she succeeded.

Mons. Demotte, a gallant young sailor and citizen of Charlotte, had modestly announced his intention to walk over the harbor of the Genesee, near its mouth, upon a small rope, under the auspices and patronage of his fellow townsmen. A rope was procurred from the large elevator of Mr. Rankin and stretched across the harbor, one end being made fast in the upper story of the River Saloon, the other in the garret of the Greig warehouse. The rope was an inferior one in quality, impaired somewhat by use, and was only an inch and a half in diameter. It was drawn as taut as it would bear, and imperfectly supported by guys made fast in part to the steamer Maple Leaf and the schooner Tarry Not. The rope at no place was more than fifty feet above the water, which is pretty broad and deep at this place. The river, from dock to dock, is 222 feet wide; but the rope extended some distance from the water on either side, making it more than 300 feet it length. At half-past three the signal for the apppearance of the interpid Demotte was given from the balcony of Stutson's. Hotel, where the Mayor let the corks fly from a basket of champaign, in which his guests, with the officers of the nunicipality, drank to the success of tight rope exhibitions generally, and to those of Charlotte particularly.

Demotte appeared upon the balcony of the River Saloon, and was greeted with cheers from the multitude on both sides of the river. He modestly acknowledged the compliment, and appeared to be somewhat abashed in coming before such an audience. This young man is about twenty exacts of age, is of medium stature, has light complexion, and is what the ladies call good looking. Our reporter heard some of the dear young creatures on the Maple Leaf exclaim as he appe pretty I" "What a dear creature!" "It will be such a pity if he falls!"

Demotte wore white knee breeches and tight stockings, a blue plaid shirt, buckskin sandals, tarpaulin hat trimmed with pink ribbons, which fluttered in the breeze, and had a broad sash about he body, with tassels at the right side. He came forward, made his bow, took up his balancing pole, about twenty feet long, and commenced his march over the hempen track with a cautious step, before the gaze of a breathless crowd. He had not proceeded far before it became apparent that the rope was imperfectly guyed and a fall seemed imminent. At length the rope began to sway violently and the young hero vainly endeavored to control it and keep himself na upright position. Finding his efforts useless he threw his balancing pole into the river on one side and about the same instant he found himself falling on the other. Down he went, head foremost, but with remarkable dexterity he seized a small guy rope in his fall and was but partially immersed. Climbing the goy to the wharf with the agility of a cat, he disappeared in the River Saloon, leaving his audience in a roar of laughter. The shouts were perfectly deafening, and indicated that the risible qualities of the multitude were shaken to the bottom. The ladies cut their laces and the gentlemen unbuttoned their vests to allow more freedom to the muscles, which were so suddenly forced into play.

After a few minutes Demotte appeared again with his dress somewhat changed, and announced his determination to make another attempt to walk across the river "Sink or awim, stand or fall, survive or perish," were words not spoken by the lips of the gallant young man, but his countenance indicated as much and more. The rope had been better stayed during the intermission between his first and second attempts. He walked on and crossed the river in six minutes and a half—jumping from the rope at the east end upon the howaprit of the Tarry Not, and waving his tarpaulin as he was cheered by the audience. In a few minutes he was ready to return, and did so without difficulty, his successful trip over having given him full confidence. Taking all things into account this was a great feat. It was a triumph for Demotte and for Charlotte.

THE BOOK TRADE SALE.—The semi-annual trade sale of the works of the leading publishers in the United States, which was commenced at the establishment of Leavitt & Co., in Broadway, on Tuesday last, has entered upon its ond week, and in consequence of the briskness of the bidding and the unusual large number of books to be sold, the sale cannot possibly close until the end of the present week, although the purchasers remain till a late hour each evening in the auction room. Some of the invoices of the publishers are very large; for instance, the firm of Lippiacott & Co., of Philadelphia, sent over $7,000 worth of miscott & Co., of Philadelphia, sent over $7,000 worth of miscellaneous books, which were sold at fair prices; indeed the activity of the bidding affords a striking illustration of the revival of trade in every department. On yesterday morning Thos. Gibson, Esq., late of the Rocky Mountain News, and now of the Gold Reporter, Mountain City, embryo State of Jefferson, arrived here, ten days from Gregory's diggings, now dignified by the title of Mountain City. He left Gregory's diggings on the 16th and reached here yesterday morning, 25th inst., after being detained one day on the route. With Mr. Gibson came some five miners, all bringing some $16,000 in dust. He reports the mines in a flattering condition, and paying the industrious very remunerative wages. He had explored the mountains for some forty miles, and states as his honest conviction that gold exists all along in highly remunerative quantities, and seems sanguine con cerning the future of this, the embryo State of Jefferson He visits this place to get his family to return with him. Gregory's diggings, or, as now called, Mountain City, is northwest by west from Auraria, and about forty miles distant, being some twenty-five miles from the foot of the mountain. In the Gregory's diggings, as well as in all the gulches in that vicinity, there exists a scarcity of water just now, soon to be obviated, however, by sluiceway, now being cut for the purpose of bearing water to the guiches in the vicinity. On the last of August the Constitutional Convention of the embryo State or Territory of Jefferson met pursuant to the June adjournment. 164 delegates were present. The session lasted about one week. The principal question at issue was the organization of a State or Territorial government. The State party carried the day, although a compromise was effected by which the Convention adopted a State constitution, which is to be submitted to the "voters" of the "State of Jefferson" on the first Monday of September next. At the same time the people vote for a memorial to Congress for a Territorial officers. If the vote being for a "constitution" or for a "memorial." In the adoption of either the people again vote on the first Monday in October for State or Territorial officers. If the "memorial" is carried, it acts simply as a recommendation to Congress that so soon as the Territory is organized that the persons voted for be appointed to fill the respective offices. By another mail I hope to be able to send the Harald a file of papers from the "defiles of the Rocky Mountains" containing, probably, the constitution before the people "away out West" there.

A stampede of the mining population in the vicinity of Gregory's diggings, or Mountain City, occurred early in the present month for the head waters of the Platte and Colorado, where richer and better diggings were reported ound. Goo'n News.—From the Christian Advocate and Journal.—A reduction in the prices of sewing machines is announced in our advertising columns. Their utility is established beyond question, and at the present prices we see no reason why they shouldnot be found, as they ought to be, in every household.
Several varieties are manufactured, adapted to various purposes. So far as public ophion has been formed and utteredthe preference is emphatically accorded to the Wheeler & Wilson machine for family use, and for manufacturers in the same range of purpose and material. During the past year the trials were numerous, and all the pateuts of any pretensions were brought fairly into competition. In every case the Wheeler & Wilson machine won the highest premium. We may insance the State fairs of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvanis, Kentucky, Illinois, Wiscousin, Virginia, Michigan, Indian, Mississippl, Missouri and California, and the fairs in Cinchrand, Chicago, St. Louis, Bailtmore, Richmond and San Francisco. At the fair of the St. Louis Mechanical Association the Examining Committee was composed of twenty-five laddes of the highest social standing, who, without a dissenting voice, awarded for the Wheeler & Wilson machine the highest and only premium, a silvert-pitcher, valued at $75. If these facts donot establish a reputation, we know not what can.
